Museum of Art-Victorian Radicals Exhibition

The Seattle Museum of Art is hosting an unusual exhibition from Birmingham, United Kingdom called 'VICTORIAN RADICALS'. It focuses on the concern of artists from the Pre-Raphaelites to artists from the Arts & Crafts Movement about society losing it's humanity to industry and mechanization. Considered an avant-garde concept in it's day. On view through Sept. 8, 2019.

Out and About...

The completely immersive and interactive experience of MEOW-WOLF in Santa Fe must be seen to be believed! While in New Mexico shooting Season 3 episodes, Leslie had the opportunity to explore the secret passages and portals of 'The House of Eternal Return' and meet some of the local inhabitants along the way. Yes, that neon tree was actually a human being!

Prosthetics have been used in the make-up department at Saturday Night Live since 1975. Although technology has evolved, building forms, creating body and face casts and sculpting clay are still all in a day's work. Watch the SNL episode clip here.

Behind-the-Scenes

Seeing the actual model of Osama Bin Ladin's compound in Abbottabad that was used for briefing the President and training the U.S. assault team was breathtaking. Museum Director Toni Hiley walked me through the entire operation and the various challenges that arose on that important day in American history. Fascinating!
