Normally $5.99 per bundle, from Black Friday through Cyber Monday, we'll be offering a great Buy One, Get One Free deal. Browse the incredible selection of topics from Season 1 and Let the Learning Begin, or should we say, Let the Learning Continue?'

Help Us Continue the Journey!

Museums are a vital part of the American landscape, showcasing the greatest achievements of the human experience past, present and future. At Museum Access, we believe in the power that museums have to ignite the imagination and inspire learning for all ages. We also understand that not everyone is fortunate enough to visit many of our country's incredible museums in person so we are proud to bring the learning to them through our Public Television series. Museum Access is not possible without the generous support of many. Please join us on our journey to educate, inspire and enrich everyone.

Every journey begins with the first step, so please consider a tax-deductible donation today and thank you for your support.

NOT TO MISS...Pierre Cardin: Future Fashion at The Brooklyn Museum

This is the first retrospective of the legendary couturier’s work in 40 years. Featuring over 170 objects from his atelier and archive including fashion sketches, furniture, (yes... furniture!) personal photographs, excerpts from television and film interviews and of course, his beautiful fashion creations, including rare designs in luxury fabrics from the 1950’s. You’ll also see recent couture evening wear and an extensive overview of Cardin’s recently designed couture menswear collection. You’ll see how Pierre Cardin has extended his design concepts to furniture, industrial design and beyond! On view through Jan. 5, 2020.

Museum Access Profiles

This month we are featuring the journey of Jim Walther, Executive Director of The National Museum of Nuclear Science in Albuquerque, New Mexico. Stay tuned for the full episode in Season 3. Enjoy!

Out and About...

Leslie was the featured guest on Joan Esposito’s WCPT-820 AM radio program, ‘Live, Local and Progressive’ in Chicago recently. “Joan was an absolute delight. We found that we both have fond memories of museums that we've visited. We talked about the research that takes place in museums and the technology that many museums are introducing to their exhibits. I also shared some behind-the-scenes stories and even gave listeners some tips to consider for their next museum visit". Listen to the full interview here.

Behind-the-Scenes New York Botanical Garden

"As the chilling temps have us putting our gardens to bed for the winter, it's nice to recall that hot summer day when we visited the New York Botanical Garden and spoke with Todd Forrest, Vice President of Horticulture & Living Collections. What a thrill to see the exquisite work of world-renowned artist Dale Chihuly, installed throughout the property. He referred to the New York Botanical Garden as his 'Living Canvas.'"
